An excellent website for articles about living and inverting overseas is escapeartist.com

Here are some good links that I have found on it today:

All articles by country:

One topic that should be researched out is what it takes to get a residency or work visa for each country. I saw something about FM3 and FM2ColumbiaEcuador

RESIDENT/IMMIGRANT VISAS Foreign nationals may apply to settle in Ecuador and obtain resident status. Resident visas are approved by the Immigration Board in Ecuador . The documentation process takes at least 4 to 8 weeks. There are a number of different resident visa categories, including: 10-I Retired persons who receive pensions from their native countries (required minimum monthly income from a foreign account USD 800 for the main visa holder, plus USD 100 monthly for each family dependent). 10-II Real estate and securities investors who are willing to invest in Ecuador a minimum of USD 25,000, plus USD 500 for each family dependent. 10-III Investors in industry who wish to export agricultural products, livestock, or minerals, (minimum investment of USD 30,000). 10-IV Companies with foreign local agents who possess unlimited power of attorney to represent the company in Ecuador, provided that 80% of the company's local personnel are Ecuadorian. 10-IV Technicians or technical experts under contract with a company established in Ecuador. 10-V Professionals with university degrees recognized by a national university, who wish to practice their profession in Ecuador . Should the applicant's profession not exist in Ecuador , the degree must be locally certified. The applicant must also fulfill the requirements for such practice (e.g. bar).

10-VI Individuals economically dependent on spouses or on a blood-related family member (family).
